

Here's a brief description of the roles we have immediate needs for.

Research Manager – This is an analytical role working directly with Members in our My Members Mark Community as well as our Sensory program. It's a combination of formal consumer product research and market insights. I'm looking for a scientific mind who understands how to form hypotheses from business objectives, design the right research to address, execute, analyze, and present to stakeholders. This is a great role for a Masters student with research experience from their Masters thesis. I have no requirements on a specific scientific discipline and instead want a great scientific mind who is looking to learn new ways of applying their core skillset. Experience in sensory, market research, consumer psychology from schoolwork is a plus.
